Dallas Health-Tech Startup Mend Chosen as Finalist for D CEO's 2015 Excellence in Healthcare Awards
Only Startup Listed Amongst Finalists

September 29, 2015 (DALLAS) – Innovative health-tech startup Mend has been selected as a Finalist for D CEO's 2015 “Excellence in Healthcare Awards”. Mend is the only startup in the field of finalists, which includes legacy medical institutions with over 100-year old histories such as UT Southwestern Medical Center, Children’s Health System of Texas, and The Parkland Health & Hospital System.

According to an online announcement today from D CEO Editor Matt Goodman, “From deals and mergers to wellness plans, from executives to volunteers, from research to real estate, D CEO's Excellence in Healthcare hopes to paint a vivid picture of some of the highlights over the year. We received more than 100 nominations in 11 categories.”

Mend Founder & CEO, Dr. Jonathan Clarke said of the news, “Mend is incredibly honored to be featured alongside these pillars of our medical community, who have literally shaped the history of healthcare. Our dedicated team is working to shape it’s future through innovation. DFW is a terrific region and we’re so grateful for the support of the tech and startup communities here. Our core values of convenience, transparency and affordability really resonate with our patients and I believe the future of medicine will have to embrace these, along with technological advancement.”

Mend was launched in March 2015 by Dallas resident and board certified emergency physician, Jonathan Clarke, M.D. Dr. Clarke is a 14-year veteran of the U.S. Navy, who served wartime tours of duty as a physician in Iraq and Afghanistan. He currently serves as a Flight Surgeon and Deputy Chief of Flight Medicine for the 301st Fighter Wing, U.S. Air Force Reserve, in Fort Worth.
