Real Estate - Industrial

Dallas-Fort Worth led the nation in industrial commercial real estate development in 2022, adding 64 million square feet to the pipeline, nearly 15 percent of all new deliveries in the U.S. DFW was also the top market for sales with $8.8 billion in volume according to the Commercial Edge National Industrial Report.

Industrial space is distributed throughout the Dallas–Fort Worth region with concentrations that include:

- with concentrations that include Fort Worth's AllianceTexas;
- Areas surrounding Dallas Fort Worth International Airport;
- The Inland Port in southern Dallas County, along Interstate 20 and U.S. Highway 67;
- Suburbs including Arlington, Garland, Grand Prairie, and Coppell; and
- Developments along the Interstate 35E corridor between Dallas and Lewisville.

The industrial market has strengthened over the past several years, and accelerated during the pandemic spurring significant new developments throughout the region. The majority of construction is taking place in southern Dallas County, and the North Fort Worth market, but new industrial centers in Denton, Midlothian, and around DFW Airport have become hot markets for development.

Observers credit the strength of the regional economy, as well as low taxes and labor costs, for sustaining DFW as a desirable market for real estate investment.
