

Financial Activities

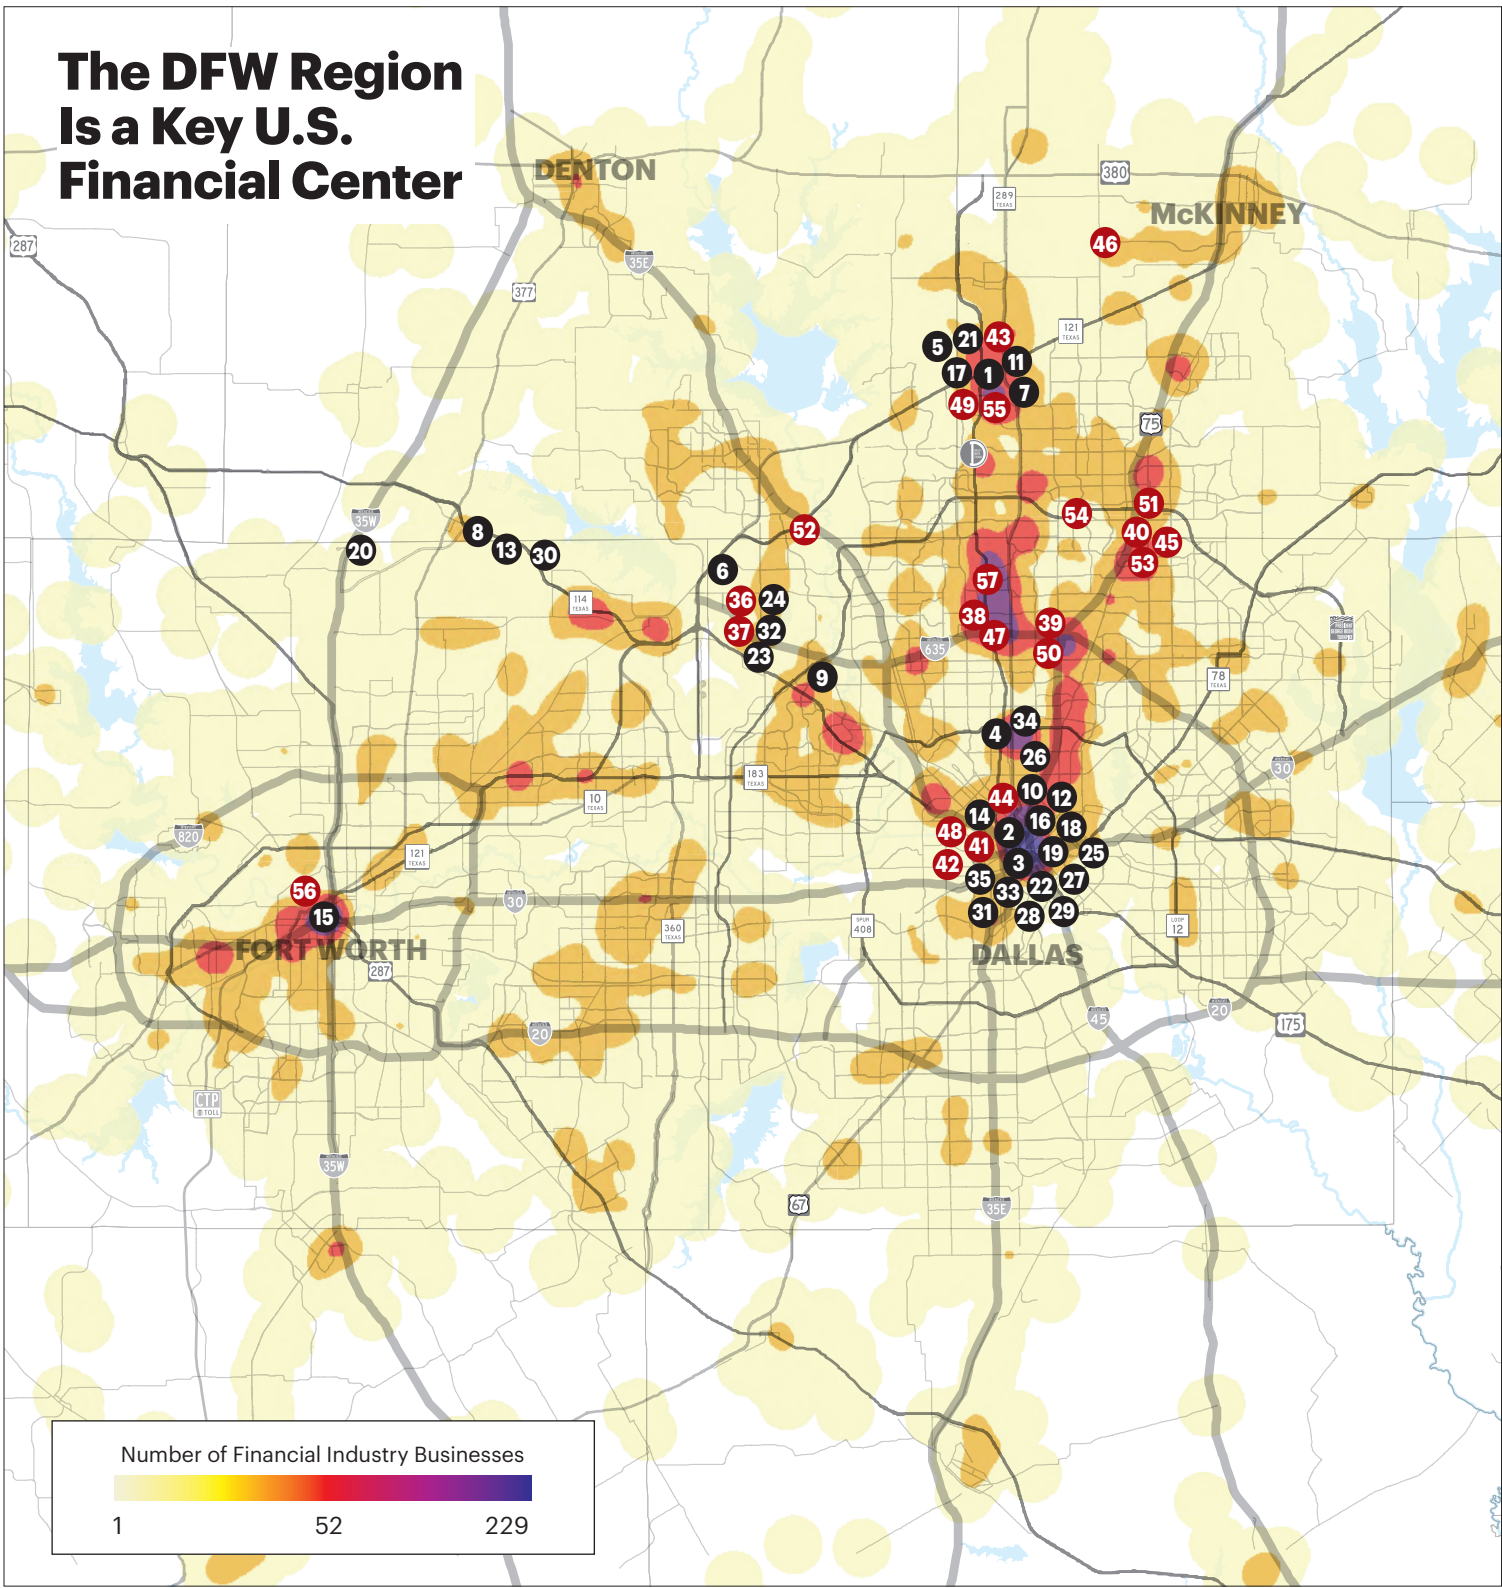

The Dallas-Fort Worth region is a key U.S. financial center. DFW is home to Comerica’s corporate headquarters, and Bank of America and Fidelity Investments maintain major operations and call centers here.

JPMorgan Chase, Citigroup, and Wells Fargo are among the top employers in the region. Capital One operates an innovation center that is helping to drive advances in fintech. In 2021, Charles Schwab relocated its headquarters to DFW after acquiring TD Ameritrade, which also has a sizable campus in the region. In 2022, Goldman Sachs broke ground on a new HQ office development in downtown Dallas that will house 5,000 employees. And in 2023, Bank of America announced it will become the largest tenant in the tallest office building in Uptown scheduled for delivery in 2027.

The Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas serves the 11th Federal Reserve District comprising Texas, northern Louisiana, and southern New Mexico. The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation also operates a regional office here.

Financial firms are located throughout the DFW region, with the largest concentration centered in downtown Dallas and its northern suburbs of Addison, Irving, and Plano. Downtown Fort Worth also has many financial companies.

When it comes to insurance, the Dallas-Fort Worth area is home to national or regional headquarters for most major providers, including State Farm and Liberty Mutual.
