

Demographics

Dallas-Fort Worth is a premier global gateway, defined by a demographic landscape that is both diverse and highly skilled. With one in five residents being foreign-born, DFW thrives on international perspectives. Cultural richness is matched by an elite talent pipeline. The workforce boasts a deep bench of experienced professionals and a steady influx of new graduates. Two-thirds of the adult population has pursued higher education, with nearly 40% holding bachelor's or advanced degree, a ready-made talent pool for innovation-led industries.

In the Dallas-Fort Worth area, more than 1,950,000 residents were added since the 2010 census.

12,200,000 or more will live in DFW by 2050.

487 people per day were added to the Dallas-Fort Worth region in 2024.
