It's common to work in one part of the Dallas-Fort Worth area and live in another. Remote workers make up 15.6 percent of the workforce, a figure that continues to decline from a high of more than 20 percent in 2021. However, in a typical year more than 80 percent of people in DFW commute to work by car, truck, or van—either alone or as part of a carpool.

Commuting for work is easy thanks to our well-developed network of interstate freeways, state highways, and tollways connecting job centers to our fast-growing new communities. The following maps—based on morning rush hour—provide an estimate of how long a commute will take.
